MKU partners with Scotland University

Muchucha, John

The Standard News paper

http://erepository.mku.ac.ke/handle/123456789/4268

Downloaded from Mount Kenya University, Institutional repository
18 firms to benefit from Sh8.5b HIV project

Part of funding will be plomacy. She adds "Adolescent girls and women are the vulnerable group in the fight against HIV/AIDS."

Another Sh38.5 billion ($385 million) deal will be signed by June, which is to benefit 600,000 women in the country.

The funds will also go to improving healthcare services, including the construction of new hospitals and the provision of medical equipment.

The initiative is expected to create over 10,000 jobs in the healthcare sector.

The funds will also be used to improve education and vocational training for girls and women.

Standard Chartered Bank will launch the Kenya Debt Swap Bond, a new type of financial product that allows governments to borrow money from international markets at lower interest rates.