ABSTRACT

This study sought to explore the use and spread of sheng language among Nairobi residents. The perception of sheng speakers is also examined in the study. Many young people in Githurai, Kahawa, and Kenyatta University Students use sheng a mode of communication. There are varied perceptions regarding use of sheng language and the speakers of this language.

This study was intended to provide vital information on this developing unique language in Africa and specifically Nairobi. Both qualitative and quantitative research methods were used in the study.
