ABSTRACT

The research involved the study of impact of moranism on academic performance among boys in public schools in Oldonyiro Division, Isiolo County. This is a vast zone inhabited by pastoral communities living in marginal lands. They are well endowed with rich and varied culture.

Survey method was adopted in collection of data from teachers' and parents within the public primary schools sighted for the study.

The literature review was on retrogressive cultural aspects, initiation into moranism and influence of moranism in education.

Questionnaires were the main tools for collecting data from the samples. Samples of the respondents were randomly selected. The researcher used tables, bar graphs and pie charts to analyze the data.

Recommendations were made as well as the conclusion.
