ABSTRACT

Information and Communication Technology systems are finding many applications in all aspects of life today, be it learning institutions, hotels, hospitals, small and large organizations and almost all businesses, due to their efficiency, accuracy, speed and quality of work done. They are used mainly for automation, decision making, and inventory control as well as employee management, just to name a few.

This project entails the activities that I intended to do to come up with a school management system that will help various learning institutions' administrators and management, enhance and ease their communication with its stakeholders who are the parents/guardians, students and even the staff.
