ABSTRACT

English language is an important subject which directly influences the performance of other subjects in the curriculum because of the fact that it is a medium of instruction.

The basis of this research project is to explore the challenges facing the teaching of English. The purpose of the study is to highlight the immediate challenges facing the teaching of the subject.

The researcher particularly focused on constraints such as inadequate exposure to the language, quality of teacher training, mother tongue influence and instructional material constraints among others.

Finally, the researcher provides possible suggestions for curbing the constraints that impede the teaching schools in Hadado Division of Wajir County.
