ABSTRACT

There has been a great obstacle in realizing the outcomes of society intervention towards child abuse in secondary education. This is indeed, a very serious phenomenon bearing in mind that education is a key factor towards the every development in any country. The government has been and is still spending a lot of money in trying to support this menace. The research is intended to find out what exactly is the main reason why very little attention is being seen after these entire struggles. The research objectives will seek to establish how various related factors such as poor control of student from the respective administration. Teacher shortage, drop outs among others have contributed to this trend. Systematic sampling will be applied in selecting the objectives of the study.

Methods of study will include survey design whereby data will be collected through interviews, questionnaires and observation strategies and the presented using tables, charts and graphs.
