ABSTRACT

This project is to find out the impact of poor parenting on children's academic performance among the children of Starehe constituency Nairobi County. Kenya just like other countries in the world has experienced rapid changes in education in the 1990s, which have at times had negative effects on both the individual child, as well as his society.

The problems encountered by the children being vast and varied, thus the children need to be provided with a tool to enable them to make responsible decisions in life.

This paper examines the need and role of parents in the Kenyan societies and makes recommendations on how parenting can be improved in Kenya.
